

2022
COMMENCEMENT

June 11, 2022
Health and Wellness Center
Bldg. 20

WELCOME, graduates of 2020, 2021, and 2022!

We are excited to be back on campus to celebrate TCC's first traditional in-person Commencement since 2019 with you, as well as the rest of the faculty and staff here today. You've all spent so much time online; you deserve to celebrate this moment with your friends and families in person.

When we had to cancel the 2020 Commencement, we promised that graduates would be able to participate in a future Commencement ceremony. That's why the program cohort you graduate with today may include graduates from all three years. As the graduates of 2020, 2021 and 2022, you have all navigated a uniquely challenging time. You summoned the grit and tenacity to complete your programs and graduate, and we hope you'll take a moment to celebrate yourselves and each other, along with the friends and family members who supported you on your journey.

There is nothing like celebrating your accomplishments in-person – seeing your smiles, enjoying your fantastic decorations on your graduation caps, feeling the positive energy from you and your guests – and this year, it's going to be even better after a time of separation and change.

Congratulations, graduates! I'm so proud of each and every one of you. Enjoy your day.

T'WINA NOBLES

2022 DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS

Washington State Senator T'wina Nobles has represented Washington's 28th Legislative District since 2021. She also serves as President and CEO of the Tacoma Urban League, where she leads programs to strengthen and support the local African American community in social equality and economic independence.

Born in Frankfurt, Germany to a military family, Nobles moved to Washington when her family was stationed at Fort Lewis, now Joint Base Lewis McChord. During her childhood, Nobles faced many challenges, including homelessness, which led her to move into foster care at the age of 15. She succeeded despite these challenges, applying her passion, energy and hard work to finishing her education and becoming a teacher.

Nobles graduated from Tacoma Community College before transferring to the University of Puget Sound, where she earned her undergraduate degree and a Masters of Arts in Education. While at Tacoma Community College, Nobles was a member of the women's basketball team. That year the women's team was West Division Champs and placed 5th in state. The state appearance was the first for TCC in a couple of decades.

Education has always been central to Nobles' life, and she believes strongly in giving back to the community that helped her succeed. She worked as an instructor for the Metropolitan Development Council's College Bound Program at Tacoma's Lincoln High School and Stadium High School, also serving as a PTA leader and school board member. She founded the in-school and after-school organization "Ladies First," dedicated to empowering young women and building positive self-esteem.

In 2019 she founded the T'wina Nobles Young Professionals Scholarships, supporting two students per year at TCC and Clover Park Technical College. In 2022 she expanded the scholarship to support two students per year at Pierce College. Nobles is also a Co-Architect of the Black Future Co-op Fund, a philanthropic organization that uplifts the Black community across Washington through intentional investments in areas such as health, housing, education, art, criminal justice reform, and civic engagement.

Nobles has served on the boards of many community organizations, including the University Place School Board, Statewide Poverty Action Network and the Black Education Strategy Roundtable. She is the recipient of multiple awards, including two "40 Under 40" awards and the 2020 Senator Maria Cantwell Women of Valor award. She lives in Pierce County, and in her free time Nobles enjoys lazy days with family, running environmental justice camps for her mentorship group, outdoor adventures in our state parks, and reading inspirational nonfiction.

GEORGIA S. McDADE, Ph.D.

2022 COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

Dr. Georgia S. McDade knew she wanted to be a teacher from the time she was six years old. Her educational journey started at all-African American southern schools she attended from elementary through college. She completed her doctorate at the University of Washington and joined the TCC English Faculty in 1970.

McDade earned her undergraduate degree from Southern University and A&M. There she found teachers who cared about their subjects and their students, and she found the subject that would inspire her own teaching career. McDade had planned to major in genetics, astronomy or mathematics until she took the world literature class, which changed her life. Majoring in English meant reading and talking about poems and stories and novels, something she had always enjoyed.

When McDade started as an English professor at TCC, majority of the students and employees were white. But then, as now, TCC was a college committed to teaching everyone who wanted to learn.

"I had never heard the term 'open-door policy,' but when I came here we were always reminded, or at least I was, that TCC had an open-door policy," McDade recalled. "And I just thought that was so wonderful that everybody had the opportunity to come to college. I'm still convinced the best way for an individual to succeed in the U.S. is to get a good education."

She always aimed to give students more than just English or humanities credits. McDade tried to make them understand that composition, literature, and humanities could be to them what they were to her: An antidote to some of the brokenness and violence in the world, a means of instituting a measure of order.

McDade loved to broaden her students' horizons, going so far as to receive her commercial driver's license so she could drive the school van and take classes on field trips. As a humanities professor she instituted "Seattle Day," a full day spent exploring Eleganza Statuary and Seattle Center; eating a potluck dinner at her house; and viewing a play. She also drove students to the Oregon Shakespeare Festival, which she attended for 49 consecutive years until COVID-19 put an end to her streak in 2020. She escorted groups to New York and shared memorabilia of her six-month solo trip around the world. Retired for 22 years, she still hears from students who have attended an event introduced in one of her classes.

McDade strongly believes in the potential of the humanities to enhance life for everyone. Since retiring from TCC in 2000, she has spent much of her time volunteering to the same activities she promoted: Connecting people to cultural opportunities. She continues to coordinate The African-American Writers' Alliance, a group which published its sixth anthology last month.

"I think we all ought to have food, clothing, shelter, medical care, and education; of course, we need a means to earn a livable wage," McDade said. "However, these are the basics. Life, living is so much more. The earlier we learn this, the better we can make our lives and communities."
