HIM 301 - Foundations in Health Information	5.	0.	5.				Fall	2019	The HIM BAS program was originally designed for students who have completed the HIT AAS degree. Since the enrollment parameters were modified to allow non HIT students into the program, it has become evident that students who have not completed the HIT AAS degree are lacking basic foundational knowledge in health information management. These students are at a disadvantage as evident in their lower scores in HIM specific courses. This new course will provide students a foundation in pertinent health information concepts from which they can build their knowledge upon. The course will also be applicable for those students who completed the HIT AAS degree for more than five years ago due to rapid and constant changes in the industry. Prerequisite: Acceptance into the HIM BAS Program - Instructor Permission Only

ENGR& 214 - Statics	5.	0.	5.				Fall	2019	Prior to this proposal, the prerequisites for Engr& 214 have been Physics 221 (concurrent enrollment OK) and Math 152. Students who take Physics 221 concurrently really struggle. They are being expected to use force components and other material that they haven't learned yet. Similarly, students struggle who have not already taken Math 153. In Math 153 they learn about vectors, dot products, cross products etc. These concepts are used extensively early in Engr 214. A much higher proportion of these students don't make it through Engr 214. In casual conversation, students have suggested that it would be better to require completion of Physics 221 and Math 153. One student this quarter asked if she should start a petition. The main reason that we allowed such low prerequisites in the past was because there were limited offerings of math, physics, and statics. Engr& 214 was only offered once a year. This is no longer true. Now we are offering Physics 221 three times a year, Math 153 every quarter, and Engr& 214 twice a year. With these increased opportunities to take the prerequisite coursework, we would like to see our students have a higher chance at success. New Prerequisite: PHYS& 221 and MATH& 153
