

Jeanne Anderson

Jeanne Anderson was born and raised in Southeastern Michigan. She grew up surrounded by different art forms like handmade quilts, needlepoint, decoupage and perennial gardens. Her mother, aunt and sisters have all significantly influenced her development as an artist.

Jeanne began her exploration into watercolor painting in 1998 and quickly fell in love with the medium. She sold her first piece at a local watercolor show and displayed her watercolor paintings at several local venues, including three one-woman shows.

After moving to Arizona in 2009, Jeanne added acrylics and pastels to her repertoire. She has taken several classes at Shemer Art Center and Mesa Art Center.

Her artwork has been accepted into juried shows for the Harvest of the Arts in Saline, Michigan (2007 & 2008) as well as two exhibitions for the Arizona Artists Guild (2010 & 2011), a student show at Shemer Art Center (2011) and a booth at Arizona Arts Festival (2017).

Jeanne has taught art to ages 5 to 80 for more than 15 years, manages her own Etsy shop (Indigo Street Studio) and has created many commissioned works of art.
